Wall Street Journal reports
Clinical Trials anticipated to begin later this year!

Highly anticipated clinical trials getting closer to starting...

The Wall Street Journal recently reported on the autologous (DNA matching) cell-based therapy for Parkinson’s disease at Aspen Neuroscience, Inc. The therapy was originally funded and supported by Summit until the project was eventually transferred out of TSRI into Summit at the Summit Lab and then into Aspen Neuroscience, Inc., a biotech company founded by Jeanne Loring, Ph.D. in the hopes of hastening the therapy’s journey from bench to bedside. Summit, as one of the co-founders of “Aspen”, is excited as clinical trials are anticipated to begin later this year.
